Redistribution 2023

Section 1: Locations sorted alphabetically

Section 2: Locations sorted by electoral district

Section 3: Electoral district maps

Using the Location Index

The Location Index contains a list of locations in British Columbia and is used by election officials to determine which electoral district voters live in.

The Location Index includes:

- incorporated and unincorporated communities
- Indian Reserves with known populations
- universities, colleges and institutes
- islands
- marinas
- hospitals and health centres

Most of these represent locations where voters live. Some locations, however, may not have resident voters but are included as reference points. For example, while some hospitals and universities have residential facilities, not all of them do.

In Section 1, the locations for the entire province are alphabetically sorted and show their associated electoral district. In Section 2, the locations are alphabetically sorted within each electoral district. Section 3 consists of maps for each electoral district.

In some cases, specific locations are shown on two or more electoral district maps. Where this occurs, the Location Index indicates the electoral district map pages which contain the specific location. For example, Prince George in Section 1 has three ED and map references:

Prince George

Prince George-Mackenzie (see map 3.55)

Prince George-North Cariboo (see map 3.56)

Prince George-Valemount (see map 3.57)

In Section 2, under the Prince George-Mackenzie electoral district, Prince George will appear as:

Prince George (see map 3.55)

It is important to refer to the map page to confirm that the correct electoral district is identified.

If individual electoral district maps do not provide enough detail, consult the folded Selected Areas of British Columbia Redistribution 2023 map at the back of the Location Index.
